

Desert Safari 2012 August 21 – September 12, 2012

Dear fellow Photographers I would like to invite you to join me for the photo op of a lifetime – 23 days in Namibia and for only Can. $6000 land cost.

We will visit some of the most photogenic sites in Africa starting in Cape Town and making our first stop in Namaqualand. This is Freeman Patterson country and we will stay in the quaint Kamieskroon Hotel where Freeman conducted his famous workshops for twenty years. Namaqualand is unique in the world for its spectacular spring wildflower bloom.

It just gets better from there. We visit the desert ghost town of Kolmanskop which Freeman also made famous, then on to the 1000 foot red sand dunes at Sossusvlei, along the skeleton coast with its desert elephants and shipwrecks, to the stone age Himba people and to Etoshia National Park for some of the best wildlife photography in Africa.

And those are just a few of the highlights. There will be virtually non-stop shooting every day so bring lots of memory. If you are interested please send an e-mail and I will forward a detailed itinerary to you.
